Harvard and McGill have been The first senior college football friendly rivals on the fields of sport for 52 years. When the Red and the Crimson clash on Forum ice tonight, it will be the 20th time that these two colleges have met at hockey in a series that goes back to 1894. But the Harvard-McGill rivalry is much older than their came into Canadian football. The hockey wars. As early as 1874, teams from the two old colleges met in a rugby football maich to inaugurate what is probably the oldest international intercollegitate rivalry in the world. Harvard and McGill played football against each of which was in 1891. By that time, the rules governing Canadian and American football had diversed so widely that the series was discontinued. Thirteen years later, and he scored five goals. Though Harvard had taken up hockey, the friendly rivalry was resumed on the Crimson have met at least once the country of the co ridering the fact that in the early days of hockey. Harvard was at a distinct disadvantage, the series has been remarkably close. McGill won the first game, played here on the old Victoria rink, on February 2. 1894, by the score of 14-1. The Garctte report of the game indicates that the Crimson was badly outlayed. The Garctte report of the game indicates that the Crimson was badly outlayed. It is something of a surprise to note, however, that as early as 1912, the Crimson was able to handward won the only game played that tyear by a 2-9 score and since that time, neither club has ever wan any game by more than a fourgoal margin and in the lone case, Harvard was the victor. The greatest shock any Crimson team ever gave a gallery of McGill supporters was on February 22, 1831, when the Crimson, with the great Barry Wood playing centre, defeat the come are mint at was destined to become a sean that was destined to become a sean that was destined to become a sean that was destined to become a sound and Princeton by a that the game was not played arcoss the border to any extent until 1818. Association football provided the fair trivilry between Harvard, Yale and Princeton in that time, meting and the lone of the carry meetings of McGill and Harvard at football.
